

Notecards from Filipendulous Skylar Dannan, Morgan Schaffer, and Meseret Stevens

About the work:

Filipendulous is an interactive sculpture that represents people staying connected in isolating times. The work comprises six wooden posts connected by cord, each placed six feet apart and decorated to represent different quarantine coping mechanisms in our current social isolation. During the two-week installation, people added messages to the sculpture, encouraging connectedness, community, and friendship. Filipendulous means “hanging precariously, usually by a single thread.” The title references the notecards hanging from the cord, but also brings out the deeper theme of confusion in modern society and in a global pandemic. It can often feel like we are hanging by a thread, but our hope is that small projects like ours can help people, even just a little bit, to feel more connected and grounded, bringing light to this situation through art and community.

This work was part of Personal Programs, a Summer/Fall 2020 exhibition at Stone Quarry Hill Art Park. Learn more about the artists.

You are enough! – Morgan S.

You are important

You are the prayer,
you are the answer too. All love

You may travel far. At times you may feel alone but no matter where you are may you always feel home.

Love grows like a vine.

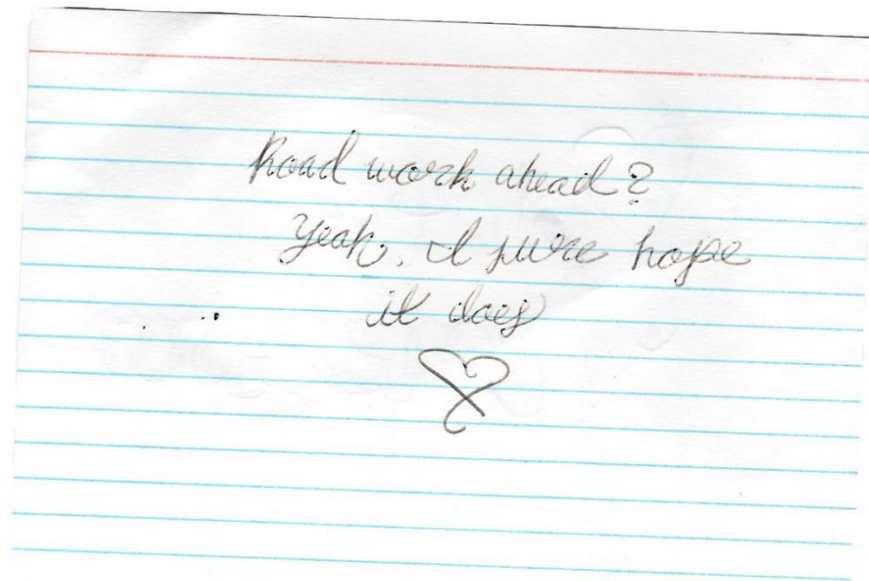

With praise and thanksgiving to the Holy Mother father God, and gratitude to the light guiding our Ascension, we offer ourselves in humble service to the healing and awakening of all beings.

May you flow with love and joy, carrying peace to all hearts.

Road work ahead? Yeah, I sure hope it does.

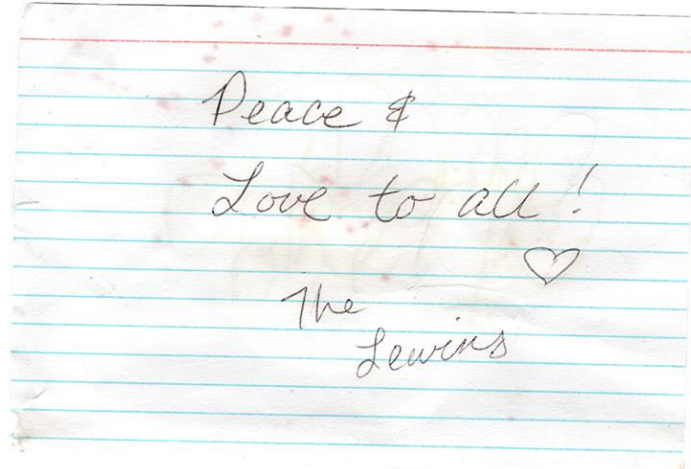

Hi, I'm Skylar (the leader of this project!) This project has taught me to just go for it. It's a long story of how this came to be, but it started with a leap of faith and an email. If you want something, if you see an opportunity, take it! You are amazing and unique, and if you were looking for a sign, this is it.

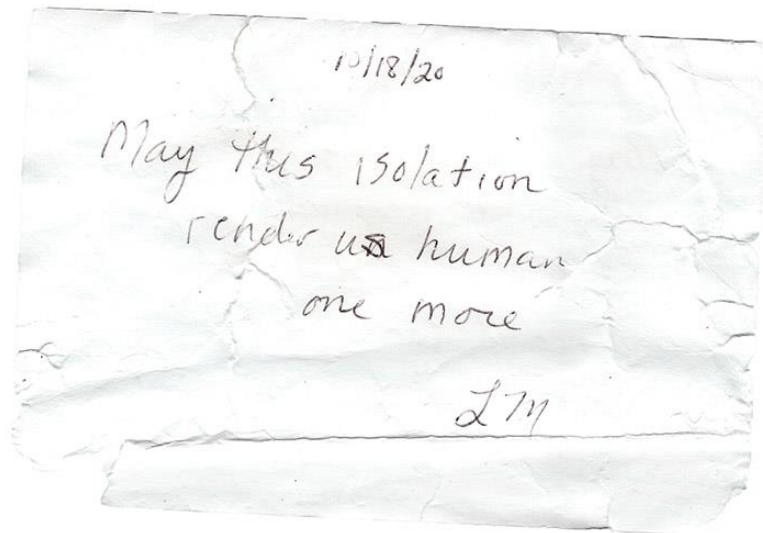

If you're reading this then I hope something good happens to you today.

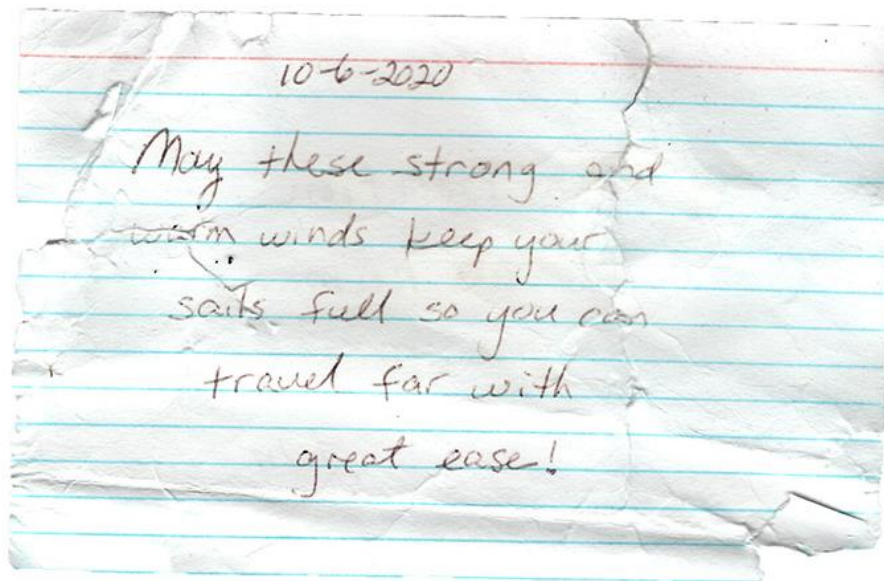

Sometimes music is the only medium the heart needs.

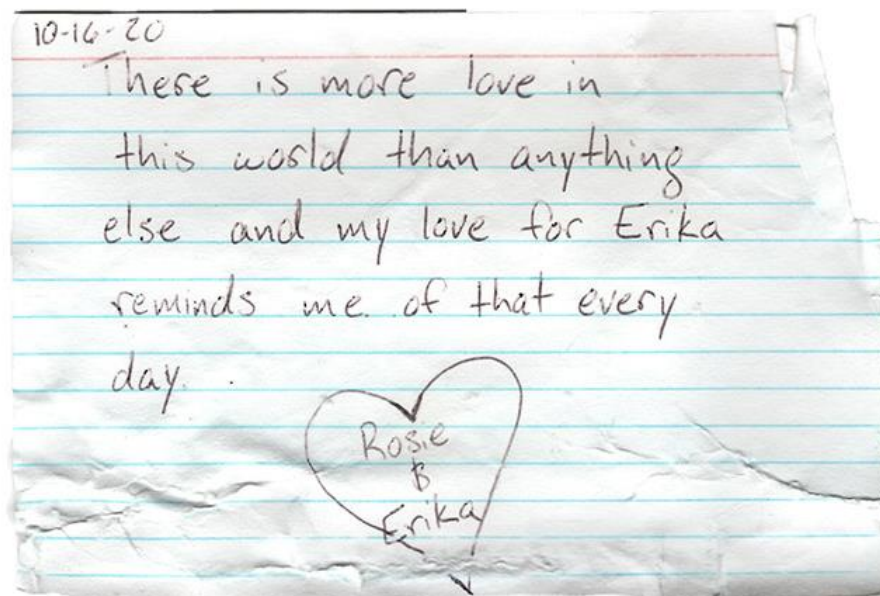

Peace & Love to all!

May this isolation render us human one more.

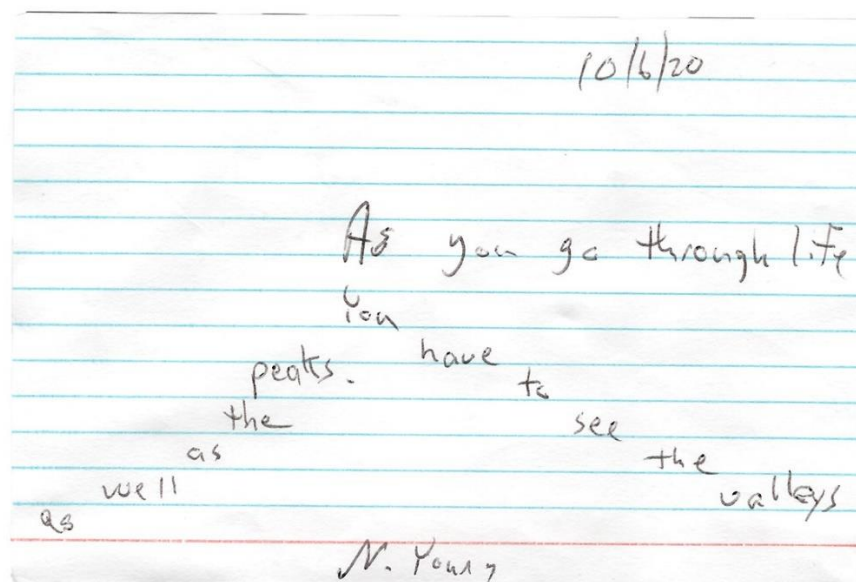

May these strong and warm winds keep your sails full so you can travel far with great ease!

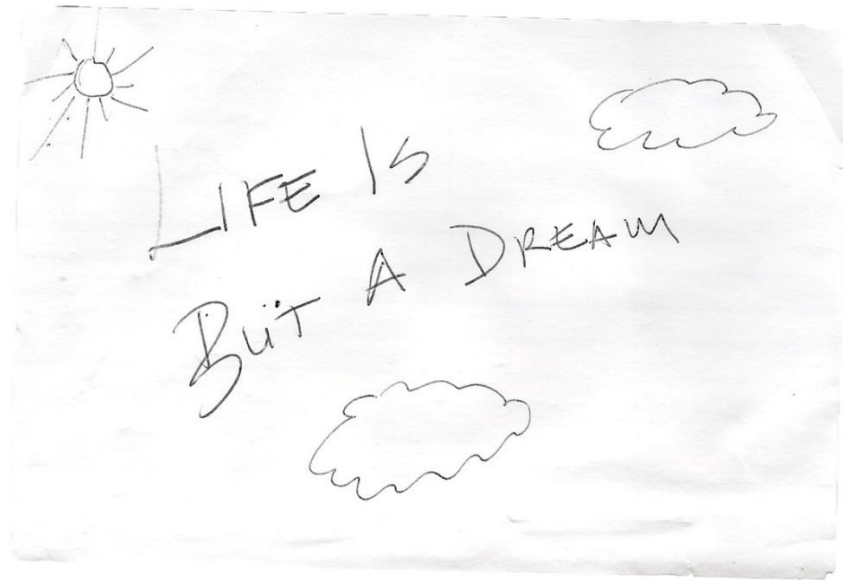

There is more love in this world than anything else and my love for Erika reminds me of that every day. Rosie & Erika

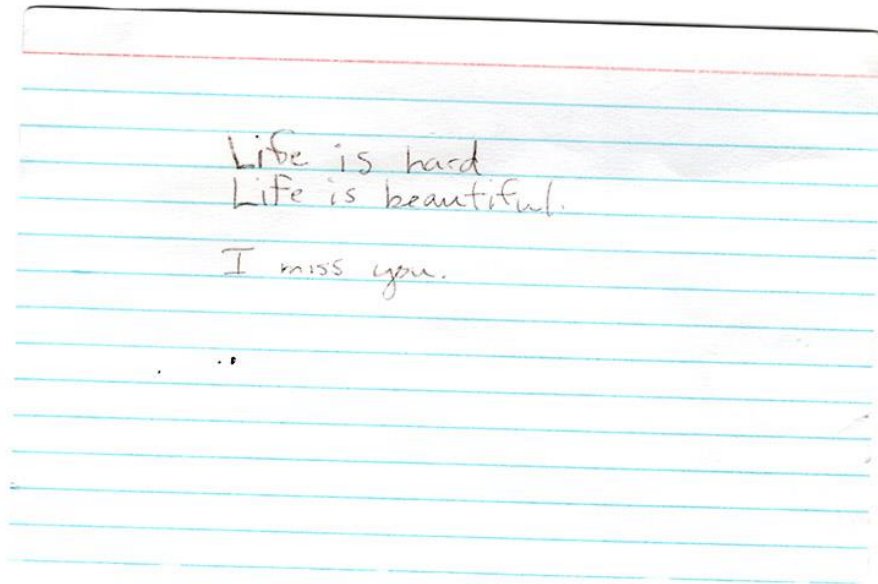

A big shining sun, a person alone on an island peak, but a sailboat floats nearby. A fish leaps! And birds soar below puffy clouds.

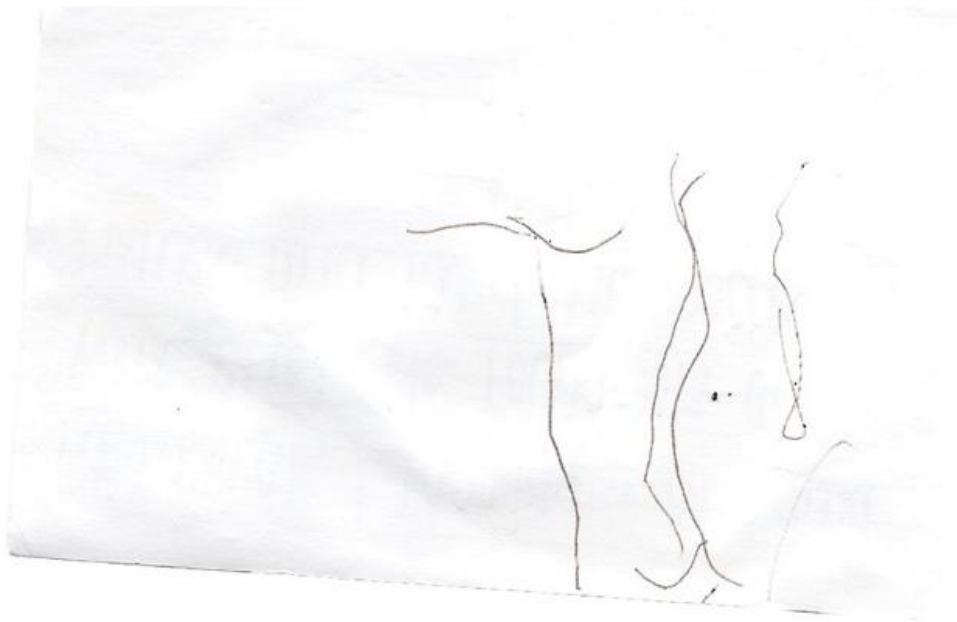

As you go through life, you have to see the valleys as well as the peaks.

Almost 2yrs ago, I suffered a head injury at work. For months I wondered if I would ever be ok, if I could ever do my job again. Lots of love & support of family & friends, lots of hard work & various types of therapies and I am now back to normal.

What you learn from trauma recovery — you don't take things for granted, life is too short to waste time & too precious to waste over people's pettiness. Taking time for beauty in places like this is essential.
